HOAGLAND'S
NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER
HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets

He respectfully refers to the following

CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling invented by H R Hoagland we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used

It fastens without bolt screw or nut is therefore easily and speedily separated It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses It is really a God send so that if a shaft or tongue may be detached in an instant and is convenient, safe and secure

It is easy to change to this style from the ordinary buggy or other vehicle now in use and with small expense We have come to the conclusion to use this new fastening exclusively and recommend its use in all cases We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent heretofore considered the best in use

MONDAY MORNING MARCH 28 1870

Very "Respectable"

Mr La Fayette Grover has always been known for constitutional timidity in short, for lack of backbone It was this which caused his friend Bush to say in the heat of a political campaign about a dozen years ago,—"Grover is a sexual mistake he was intended for a woman His associates in politics in those days had a hard time of it with him He was continually trying to make fair weather with all parties and save himself by being "all things to all men" Harding Bush, Lane, Smith, and all others prominent in politics during the palmy days of Democratic ascendency in Oregon, found it necessary to watch him continually, and many were the annoyances and vexations to which they were subjected by his small fetches, little deceptions, timid counsels and double-dealing generally He threw off on Harding and Bush after they had sent him to Congress, he played a double part with Delazon Smith and his friends in the hope to beat Smith for the Senate; after the rupture of the party he professed to Lane to adhere to him, but was forced by Bush to abandon him, and finally he refused to help Stout when the latter was nominated over himself for Congress. But throughout all these vicissitudes of timidity, irresolution and double-dealing he was always true to the fortunes of one man. That only man was L F Grover

So, when the war broke out Mr Grover, though still a Democrat, refused to come to the help of the Democratic party There was little probability of success, and Mr Grover prudently kept aloof from the party councils He would accept no nomination or make no speeches It was highly dangerous, he thought, for a prudent and respectable man to peril his reputation by standing up for the Democratic party, feeble as it was in those times Mr. Grover could not shout with the larger crowd, and was altogether too wary and cautious to be found shouting with the smaller one. Therefore he kept out of harm's way, and saw the party meet with one defeat after another, without coming to its aid or making the smallest effort to retrieve its fortunes In 1862 he was too careful of himself and altogether too discreet even to be seen on the street with prominent politicians of the party, and the duties studiously kept in the background

But now for once Mr Grover has done a bold thing. He has made a fight for the nomination for Governor and won it. When a plan for a platform was discussed at Albany last week he courageously declared that anything would suit him,—that "the party couldn't make a platform he wouldn't stand on" This was sham courage, because it was begotten of a belief (an ungrounded belief, however,) that success is certain Were it not for the remembrance of that twelve hundred majority which Mr. Smith obtained two years ago Mr. Grover would never have dared to seek a nomination or to say much a thing But daunted by the success which his brother-in-law, Mr. Smith, achieved two years since, he thinks it time now for himself to take a leading position in the party, and so earnest is he that he don't care what kind of platform they make for him. He will be in a fix to see his mistake in June.

Mr. Littimer, in David Copperfield was a very "respectable" person. He was so very "respectable," as the chronicler assures us, that one was quite overcome in his unbending presence That the nomination of Mr Grover is "respectable" will be generally conceded It is "respectable" because he has always taken such good care to look out for Number One, to preserve himself from injury and danger, and to build himself up in aristocratic and selfish security. One wrong step he has made; and he will pay for his temerity. He has allowed himself to be placed as a leading candidate on a platform which the people of Oregon must pronounce against or suffer a loss of honor. Such being the issue there should be no doubt of the result.

Who are the Monopolists?

Forgetting the time when their party under the banner of Jackson supported protective tariffs, the Democrats of Oregon now denounce and oppose tariffs, and for that matter all other methods of taxation. In this connection the usual talk about "monopolists" is also indulged in.

Now on this point an interesting question arises. Is it not the free traders rather than the tariff men who are the monopolists of the country? For instance, all the great importers of New York are in favor of free trade. As a sequel to the recent free trade meeting in that city about which so much noise has made in free trade journals, we find the following list of subscriptions to the support of the movement published in the New York Evening Post:

Moses K. Sands	$5,000	B. H. Hutton	$1,000
Richard Bayley	5,000	Tho's Holland	500
Charles H. Marshall	5,000	Alfred Pell	250
R. B. Minturn,	2,500	F. A. Hasenclever	250
H. W. Richmond	1,000	John Griswold	500
Arnold, Constable & Co.	1,000	Jackson L. Scoults	500
		G. Cabot Ward	500

When it is remembered that every one of the above liberal subscribers is interested, directly or indirectly, in the importing trade, a clear conception of the spirit of the movement may be obtained. Is it probable, asks a correspondent, that they would subscribe money by the thousands of dollars to keep up the agitation in favor of free trade, and in aid of a scheme to deprive the Government of the income it now receives from duties on foreign goods, if they did not expect to profit from the result? It is evident that they expect their profits to be largely increased, that they will be compensated for what they spent in agitating the subject, and this is to be brought about by the destruction of American manufactures, removing the competition with foreign ones, and by turning part of what now goes into the Government treasury as duties to pay the principal and interest of our national debt, into their own pockets in increased profits The chief, if not the only gainers by this policy will be the importers and foreign manufacturers, while home manufactures will languish, industry be discouraged and the people compelled to supplement in direct taxes from their pockets what has been taken from them by the abolition of customs on foreign imports

Practically Unanimous

It turns out that the Albany Convention was wholly for repudiation Even the minority report of the Committee on resolutions against the original eighth article was about as full of repudiation as the majority report It has been said that two members of the Committee out of twenty refused to sanction repudiation as a party measure, but an examination of their report puts this statement in a totally different light Here is the substitute which the minority (Johnson of Curry and Cochran of Lane) offered for the original eighth article

That as the people of the United States ought never to submit to be saddled with a permanent public debt to be handed down from one generation to another to eat out their substance and sink them into slavery therefore we are opposed to the funding of the so called national debt except upon an equitable adjustment between the bondholder and the people based upon the amount of coin originally paid, and the amount received and the immunities enjoyed by the holders thereof since their issue

This was the most favorable proposition for the public creditor that any member of the Convention had to offer and this it will be seen was a repudiation proposition The Convention throughout was therefore unanimous practically on this subject

Editorial Notes.

In Marion and Clackamas counties the Republicans have nominated excellent tickets By the action taken all the strength of the party is combined The largest attainable majority is assured in Marion, and a good majority in Clackamas

The Salem Press some weeks ago, in reply to a remark made by the OREGONIAN relative to State Printer, said it would be a "manifest insult" to nominate any one not a practical printer, for that office As the Democratic party has conferred this nomination on one not a practical printer the Press will now have an opportunity to enlarge a little on this matter

The Oregon City Enterprise has made a discovery It has ascertained that a considerable number of men are at work on the railroad in this county and Clackamas and calls it "colonizing" We are sorry for the Enterprise, but the fact is no way has yet been discovered to build railroads but by employing men to do it The Oregon City paper of course don't want railroad work to go on till after the election, but great enterprises can't wait for the slow movements of the decayed Democracy Work will be prosecuted on the railroad both before and after the election, all the same

A Chinese company in Nevada county, California, is taking measures to test the constitutionality of the miners' tax law They are prompted to this proceeding by their attorney, John K Sale. It is the intention of Sale to publish in Chinese the State law with extracts from the treaties with China and opinions of Courts bearing on the question, to inform the Chinese of their rights and interest them in the prosecution of the suit. There can be no doubt what the result will be. But another point to be mentioned is this Sale is well known as an earnest and uncompromising Democrat, and has always been one. There are persons in this city who know him well, and who can furnish his address to our Knights of the Horny Hand

A proposition to flume Foot's creek for about a mile and a half from where it empties into Rogue river, has been considerably talked of of late, says the Jacksonville Sentinel It is believed that there are rich diggings on this creek for about a mile and a half from its mouth which, owing to want of fall, cannot be worked without a flume The cost of the undertaking is estimated at $5 000 We would be glad to see the enterprise go on

That some of the most distinguished of the world's actors are but children of a larger growth and dreadful babies at that is manifested in our latest news of Isabella of Bourbon What with feasts and intrigues here and there and the noise of pulling wires at Rome and Paris that foolish woman has wasted five millions of dollars in the last eighteen months Supposing that she spent money at an equal rate during the most troublesome period of her reign, Spain has reason to rejoice in being rid of her All this treasure has been drawn from a wretched country, to be gambled away for contemptible political ends Yet if Spain congratulates herself on having saved a penny or two by the accession of Prim and Serrano it is rather because Isabella was extravagant then because those men are economic How much for instance, will they spend upon Cuba? How much will they gain by their investment?—N Y Tribune

CITY.

HOME AGAIN.—After seventeen days' absence during all of which time it was stormy, bad weather, excepting one day, Messrs Wm Dierdorff, United States Inspector of Steamboat Hulls for this collection district, and John Gates U S Inspector of boilers, returned home by the Alert yesterday. They left here on the 10th inst. on official business to the Umpqua and Coos Bays We have seen and conversed with Capt. Dierdorff, and although a pioneer in Oregon himself, the experiences of the trip terminating yesterday would seem to place him in the list of just having begun the career of a pioneer The region through which these gentlemen have passed, at this time of the year is far from being attractive, or even passable, as may be inferred from the fact that for a considerable part of their journey by stage the average hourly time was about two and a half miles This may be denominated slow, but then, we recollect having heard a pioneer of Western New York, not many years ago, say that he had been 31 days making 64 miles in those regions once. Notwithstanding the many years that Capt Dierdorff has been in Oregon, this was his first trip by land to the southern part of the State. The weather was too unfavorable for him to make a reconnaissance of the country; he agrees that with increased facilities for transportation and communication, the country is able to well maintain a large and thriving population. They found one steamer on the Umpqua—the Swan, Capt. Haun, which was being repaired and fitted to run. They took a trip on her and she worked very satisfactorily From Umpqua they crossed via the trail and beach many miles, to Coos Bay, where four log boats were found. Maritime matters have heretofore been at rather loose ends on Coos Bay, but these have straightened things up, and set the [illegible] going according to United States requirements. On the return from Coos Bay, in approaching the mouth of Tee Mile creek, the [illegible] Dierdorff was riding [illegible] and for a time it was a matter of concern whether the Captain would go to see with beaver or not—the wind was fierce, and [illegible] high, but by perseverance and a [illegible] he at length succeeded in making [illegible] That stretch of twenty miles is [illegible] with about as much interest, perhaps, as [illegible] miles in the world, and we [illegible] tourists, who are in search of [illegible] and bona fide adventure, to pay [illegible] at a season when the break [illegible] upon to run high.

[illegible]—A day or two since, as we [illegible] in the shades of evening were draw [illegible] in a state of wretched intoxication [illegible] by a bright little boy of per[illegible] to a house in the back part [illegible] in a boisterous way demanded [illegible] The lady of the house, being alone [illegible] child, was afraid to admit her, [illegible] door. The intoxicated woman [illegible] ration for some little time, [illegible] crawled down on the door-mat outside [illegible] the little boy plead with and [illegible] to go on. "Oh Mamma! comes do [illegible] with me; I can find the [illegible] Mamma!" Thus entreated [illegible] with the tears pouring down his [illegible] as if his heart would break. [illegible] last woman did not heed him for [illegible] little fellow sat down on the [illegible] pouring rain and cried with all the [illegible] poor, tender, yearning heart. He [illegible] to the skin, and the fallen woman [illegible] to his mother was in a similar condition [illegible] she had been down wallowing [illegible] which her face and neck and hair [illegible] were covered. The lady of the house [illegible] them in, and in particular to give [illegible] to the poor child, but the in [illegible] was so boisterous that she was [illegible] to open the door. Finally the child by [illegible] induced the mother to go with him, [illegible] the howling storm every moment [illegible] was following. She tottered and [illegible] this silly thing disappeared from [illegible] What could be more pitiful than such a [illegible] A bright little boy of only four years, [illegible] the manly and kind-hearted [illegible] [illegible] of all this and trying [illegible] utterly beloved by strong drink. [illegible] they called home, and she [illegible] this poor little one for guidance [illegible] trouble at such a sight, [illegible], who can tell?

Aiken, [illegible] legal advice, and the result is [illegible] will make formal application for [illegible] to restrain the laying of any more [illegible] roads in his district upon [illegible] and to be collected. The case will be [illegible] public interest.

CURRENT NOTES

The liquor dealers of Washington have succeeded in obtaining 9 000 signatures to a petition remonstrating against the passage of Senator Pomeroy's prohibitory liquor bill for the District

Senator Revels has instructed the door keepers of the Senate not to deliver the cards of any visitors to him during the session of the Senate Senator Sumner long since laid down a similar rule

The father of Senator Benton lies obscurely buried in a patch of pines, four miles west of Hillsboro, N C, where, says the Recorder of that place "the country people daily pass, and little regard that the father of the greatest statesman of the country lies buried near"

A Southern paper complains that the pine tree on Isle aux Pois, known as the 'English Look out' from having been used as a post of observation by the English after their retreat from before New Orleans was cut down the other day by railroad contractors and sold to a sawmill

Among the pall bearers at the funeral of Wesley Harper, the second dead brother of the firm of Harper Brothers, were Wm H. Demerest, who has been employed by the firm for thirty seven years, Henry Marsh an employee of forty eight years, and Thomas Farrington, an employee of fifty years

Senator Wm M Tweed's stable in Fortieth street, New York, is three stories high built of light stone, with Mansard roof, cost $48,000 without the lot, and is equal in style to a first class Fifth avenue dwelling. Window glass that cost $250 a pane adorns the windows and rich Brussels carpets are on the floor Great is Tammany, and great is the profit

Some people have strange ideas of amusement Minister Washburne gave a reception in Paris, in honor of Washington's Birthday, and the most conspicuous decoration of the rooms, according to our foreign files, was a white muslin banner inscribed "Washington est mort!" If this was not news it was at any rate history, like Artemus Ward's remark about Julius Cæsar, "Alas, he is no more," but the unprejudiced mind will naturally inquire why the harrowing intelligence should be thus abruptly proclaimed in moments of revelry, and the funeral baked meats be made to coldly furnish forth the birthday festival?

The politicians are speculating on the influence which the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment will exercise on the next elections In Pennsylvania, the best and shrewdest politicians say that the Republican vote will not be increased more than five thousand, and that in the ward in Philadelphia which has the largest colored population a majority of them will probably vote the Democratic ticket In the country districts they will go Republican solid The result in Maryland will not be changed, although the vote of the Republicans will be largely increased The Republicans there hope that it will ultimately give them the State.

When ex Secretary Seward shall return to his quiet home in Auburn, it will be under such proud and happy auspices as have seldom been vouchsafed to any other American statesman Entering public life at 30 years of age he has, with the exception of two intervals amounting to ten years, been continuously and prominently before the people of the State and Nation until his retirement one year ago For thirty years he has been an active participant in current political affairs, and to day stands second to none in the influence he has exerted, or the impress he has made upon the record of events When the asperities of political feelings shall have died away—as they speedily will—Mr Seward will be honored as an American statesman who has honored his country. He has already gone into history, and it may well be a source of pride as well as consolation to him to know that his name is permanently identified with the preservation as well as the regeneration of his country

"Only three wash basins and two towels for six hundred persons" would cause a riot most anywhere The troubles of Oliver Twist sink into insignificance beside the revelations of the New York Legislative Committee of Commerce of which the foregoing is a specimen Ward's Island is an emigrant depot in New York harbor, and like many other institutions in that locality, has long maintained an offensive odor Whenever a poor victim cried out for "more" towel and wash basin, or "more" food, or even "more" cleanliness, there was always a "Mr Bumble" to say that "some people are never satisfied," or to echo the historic steamboat captain's reply, "Sir, fifty people have used on that towel this morning, and you are the first that has found fault" The investigation of the Committee further shows that the towels and wash basins were changed but twice a week, that the food was bad and scarce, the beds hard and dirty, and vermin abundant If this mode of life is essentially metropolitan, let us encourage an ambition to be provincial

BURLINGAME AND BROOKS.—After the acceptance of the challenge from Preston S Brooks, in July, 1856, he printed a statement of the affair which concluded as follows

"Self respect requires me to say that I can never again recognise, save to do him a kindness if it should be in my power, Preston S Brooks I hand him over to that public North and South which is ever scornful of those who boast much and perform little And now I hereby submit myself to the public whose convictions I have invaded I pray them to remember that forgiveness is a higher quality than justice I cast myself on their generous hearts which are always tender, always loving Let them not forget when passing on my conduct the sneers I have seen, the taunts I have heard, how the old State we all love has been insulted her cherished Senator stricken down and how he yet lingers in almost helpless illness As you of my own State remember these things, you will not entirely blame me if in the moment of indignation I was willing to stand up at the hazard of my life and what is dearer than life, the insulted honor of those who have always been kind to me I am no duelist I seek no man's life I have but acted in the spirit of the speech I made when I said that if pushed too long and too far there were men from the old Bay State who would defend her honor and the free dom of speech in whatever field they might be assaulted My course became to me a defense of liberty against slavery a struggle for freedom of speech against the freedom of the bludgeon and the only way that seemed to be left was that by which we could defend ourselves

An article termed compressed leather' is now manufactured of the waste leather of shoe factories and saddlery establishments by first cleansing it of dirt and other foreign substances, then cutting it into fine shreds, with the waste of raw hides and immersing it in water containing one per cent of sulphuric acid until the whole forms into moulds of the desired size After these have been dried by means of steam the masses are passed between rollers, one of which is rough, and the other smooth, for the purpose of producing a surface in imitation of flesh and grain sides of leather To render the whole pliable, one pound of glycerine is added for each hundred pounds of material. For many purposes, as for the soles of shoes, &c, this artificial substance completely replaces the natural leather, and can be sold at a much cheaper rate.

The French pieces of 25 francs' value corresponding to the English sovereign will soon be issued Their name has not been decided on

We hear that since the great fall in the price of gold and the approach of our currency to par a number of retail business houses in Philadelphia, and a few (yesterday) in this city, have adopted the practice of giving their customers their small change in coin Probably in such cases a trifle more is charged for the goods and probably the practice has been adopted as an advertising scheme But in any event the fact is significant, and is one of the many signs of our approach to a specie currency There is an immense amount of American silver in Canada where we have heard for a long time, it is regarded as a nuisance We would like to see our silver dimes and quarters and half dollars back again, and we should like to see the abatement of the disagreeable little shinplasters which have so long offended our eyes and fingers

In Marseilles a lady was returning from church when she heard steps behind her and felt some one take her hand and draw it under his arm Turning round she saw a gentleman, elegantly dressed, who was quite a stranger to her She tried to draw away her arm but the man would hold it firmly and said with an air of greatest politeness Madame I am a thief and am closely pursued by the police They know that I am a stranger in the town, and will never suspect me if they see me in the company of a lady so respectably connected as you must be

RAILROAD MATTERS are very likely to be lively this spring The East Side Company will engage a large force of men to complete their road to Albany and the West Side Company will very probably build a portion of their road in order to obtain a land grant to facilitate the building of their line to McMinnville Kohn & Fishel are keeping up with railroad times Their stock of spring goods coming across the continent by rail will be the largest and finest stock of clothing ever imported to this State Their stock in store now is offered very low to make room for large arrivals They are manufacturing the neatest Boys Suits and always have on hand a large stock of the same which are offered at lowest figures.

Another Chinese Bill.

[From the Sacramento Record.]

The white men who dare not face the competition of Chinamen, and who, while constantly alluding to their intelligence and superior civilization, as constantly prove by their acts that they are shallow-brained, narrow-minded set of bigots, have passed another Chinese bill, which is, if anything, more ridiculous and more unconstitutional than its predecessors. The Fortune bill provides that no private enterprise to which State aid is contributed, shall be conducted with the aid of Chinese. That is to say, that no corporation or individual shall have the right to go into the market and buy at the cheapest rates, but shall be forced to submit to an arbitrary rate imposed in defiance of the Constitutions alike of California and the United States. That is the sum and substance of this precious bill, which such men as Gildea undertook to defend. They dared not, however, suffer the bill to be discussed fully and fairly, but falling back upon the parliamentary refuge of obloquy or incompetence, moved the previous question, and so forced it to passage. As far as the bill is concerned, it amounts to nothing, for no Court in the United States could sustain it for a moment, but it is humiliating to see white men degrade themselves by this unmanly terror of the Chinaman, and outrage common sense by such bald nonsense as has been advanced on this question. We are ashamed when we think of the light these bills will place us in before our brethren in the East. They will picture us as a handful of timid, weak-kneed, feeble-minded, degraded wretches, who have not so low that we cannot even hold our own with a Chinaman. At the same time they will teach us to despise us for the mingled boastful and pusillanimity which has prompted on the one side unlimited brag about our superiority in intelligence, and on the other has induced our legislature to resort to the grossest injustice and the most flagrant discrimination, to protect us from the competition of those whom we affect to despise.

CORBIN AS A WRECK.—Mr. Corbin appeared before the Committee in the character of a wreck, and a very pitiable exhibition he made of himself. "I am very weak, very nervous, perfectly broken down; there is but a wreck left;" yet Mr. Corbin, strange to say, is the one actor in this serio-comic drama who deceived all his associates and was not himself swindled in turn. Without a particle of influence over the President or any other officer, he persuaded Mr. Gould that he could control the financial policy of the Administration. He played the farce so well that Mr. Gould was induced to carry bonds and gold for his benefit, and pay him, at one time, $25,000 profit on the transaction. Yet no assurances—no answer, indeed—could be obtained from Washington. Mr. Corbin had nothing to show in support of his pretensions, and Mr. Gould, whenever he tried to, scared the President upon his financial purposes, got snubbed. Even after his suspicions were aroused, the "wreck" lulled him into security, if he did not get from him a check for $100,000. Jay Gould bled in that way by Abel R. Corbin! It is enough to amuse a saint.—N. Y. Tribune.

APOLOGETIC.—The White Pine News of March 14th says:

At the present writing we are in the midst of the most terrific storm we ever experienced anywhere. The atmosphere is not intensely cold, but it cuts about with a rapidity, variety and industry not at all charming. The tin roof of the office has gone off entire, and all hands are at work without shelter. The gale is so terrific that repairs cannot be made, and we are compelled to freeze it out, praying for an early subsidence of the storm. Under the circumstances, it is necessary to crave the indulgence of our friends, with the deficiencies in this issue of the Daily News. Every man is in his place, all industriously working in the cold, laboring to bring out some sort of publication, to keep up the proper daily appearance.

A NEW WAY OF STEALING A COAT.—At the firemen's ball, a few nights since, a Central avenue merchant tailor was approached by a man who said: "Want to dance?"

He answered that he did, and the man said:

"Well, here's my wife wants to dance; I ain't much of a dancer, and I want a partner for her."

The partner that was to be, said: "Well, let me put my overcoat away."

"Oh, no," said the husband, "I'll take care of it for you," and at the same time introduced his "wife" to the merchant tailor.

So the merchant tailor of Central avenue gallied gaily away in the dance with "that wife," while the husband gaily slid off with the nice overcoat and never has been seen since.—Cincinnati Commercial.

A CLERICAL principal of an Episcopal boarding school for boys called his pupils together at the beginning of Lent, and gave them a short lecture upon self-denial and self sacrifice, and advised them to select some article of food with which they would dispense during the season of Lent. The boys were directed to go into a room by themselves, and, after deciding what luxury they would give up, to return to the chapel and report their decision. The boys retired, and soon returned and made the following report: "Respected principal: I have the honor to report that your pupils have religiously considered the subject submitted to them by your reverence, and have unanimously voted to dispense with hash during Lent."

La Mountain the Aeronaut.

HIS THRILLING ADVENTURES IN THE CLOUDS—1,180 MILES IN LESS THAN 10 HOURS—HOW THE BRAVE MAN'S LIFE WAS SACRIFICED BY THE IDLE CURIOSITY OF A CROWD

[From the New York Tribune, March 4.]

John La Mountain, the famous aeronaut, died at South Bend, Ind., on the 14th of February. La Mountain's life was full of daring adventures and of incidents, which were frequently more interesting than agreeable. He was among the most fearless aeronauts in this or any other country, and pursued his chosen profession with a higher object than to merely make money by exhibiting himself. He was compelled to make balloon ascensions for the public amusement; as a means of support, but he hoped to make his experiments useful in the advance of science and the development of meteorological theories. He finally died poor, at the age of 41. A pet theory of La Mountain was that there was a current in the atmosphere corresponding with the Gulf Stream in the ocean, and flowing steadily from west to east. He was ambitious to be the first aeronaut to cross the Atlantic, taking advantage of this current. He built the famous balloon "Atlantic" for this purpose. This is one of the largest, strongest and most beautiful balloons ever made. The aeronaut determined to test his theory by a land voyage first, and started from St. Louis for the East, accompanied by John Wise, Mr. Hyde, an editor of the Missouri Republican, and Mr. Gager, a scientific man of Boston. The party were in the air over nine hours, passing over Lake Erie, and into New York State. Up to this point they had enjoyed what seemed to them a calm, though their motions must have been very rapid. While crossing Lake Ontario, a tornado seized the balloon, and it was left a wreck in the woods of Jefferson county, N. Y. The "Atlantic" had traveled 1,180 miles in less than ten hours. This disaster ruined La Mountain's plan of crossing the ocean for the time. He was saddened but felt that the trip had important results in showing the velocity of aerial motions, and demonstrating the fact that a balloon might cross large bodies of water. A small balloon was made from the remnants of the "Atlantic," and he started on a trip from Watertown, New York, with Mr. John A. Haddock, editor of the Reformer. The trip was a remarkable one. The voyagers, who expected to return in a few hours, were not heard from for many days. Public excitement became intense. The mystery was at last explained. Having no compass, the aeronauts had lost their bearings, and were carried far into the dense woods of the Ottawa reservation, in Canada. After wandering for many days subsisting upon leaves and berries, they were accidentally discovered, in the last stages of starvation, by some Indian scouts in the employ of a lumberman. Their story was widely published and illustrated by the newspapers. When the war began, La Mountain turned his attention to military ballons, and was the first aeronaut engaged in the service. The advantages gained in war by ballooning were very uncertain, however, and the entire system was soon given up. The last serious adventure of La Mountain occurred in Michigan, and probably hastened his death. An impatient crowd cast him off before he was ready, without an overcoat or instruments, and the valve rope tied several feet above the basket. He shot like a rocket up into a heavy cloud of mist and sleet, which froze the valve board fast. He climbed, with frost-bitten fingers, upon the network, and tore the the balloon with his teeth. The opening extended so far that the balloon collapsed, discharging its gas, and fell with great velocity from a height of nearly two miles. The aeronaut was picked up benumbed and insensible, though not dangerously injured.

During a late strike of printers at Perth, the management of one of the newspapers invited the subscribers to assemble in one large room, where all the manuscripts of which the journal would have been composed had the printers not rebelled, were read aloud.

Eight kinds of kisses are mentioned in the Scriptures—the kisses of salutation, valediction, reconciliation, subjection, approbation, adoration, affection and treachery.
